The Tavistock Clinic Public Lecture Series regularly tackles themes of public interest which can be illuminated by attention to psychological and developmental insight. This year we have planned a series looking at the meaning of crime, the relationship between criminal and victim and social responses to criminal behaviour.

There is a profound connection between states of minds, including those of the mentally ill, and criminal acts. One of the disturbing facts much highlighted in recent years is the very high level of mental illness in the prison population. Similarly high is the proportion of offenders whose early history includes major losses, emotional and economic deprivation and periods in care. Public attitudes to crime and the criminal cover a wide spectrum from angry retaliation to reform and re-education. What would constitute a realistic penal policy in the light of what we can understand about criminality?

How, indeed, can we better understand both the criminal and what makes a person at risk of committing criminal acts? Why is it so difficult to think about crime without resorting to platitudes and prejudice?

Our distinguished lecturers are drawn from many spheres of public life - criminologists, those involved in administering the justice system, writers and others who have contributed to the intense ongoing public debate in politics and the media.

Following the lectures there will be an opportunity for audience questions and debate.

PROGRAMME

1 MARCH

Psychological effects of wrongful imprisonment
Dr Adrian Grounds

*Senior Lecturer in Forensic Psychiatry,
Cambridge University and Honorary Consultant
Forensic Psychiatrist at Cambridgeshire and Peterborough Mental Health Partnership NHS Trust*

Dr Adrian Grounds has assessed men who have served prison sentences for crimes they did not commit and will talk about the severe psychological problems suffered by those wrongfully imprisoned and their families.

22 MARCH

Positive Outcomes - the military approach to offending
Lieutenant Colonel Richard Holroyd

Commander of the Military Corrective Training Centre, Colchester

Lt Col Holroyd assumed command of the Military Corrective Training Centre in Colchester in February 2006. His talk will provide a military perspective on criminal behaviour.

29 MARCH

Everyone's In A Movie: Role playing and the criminal justice system
Roger Graef, OBE

Writer, Filmmaker, Broadcaster and Criminologist

BAFTA winner Roger Graef will call on his pioneering work in gaining access to hitherto closed institutions, including police, courts and prisons, to investigate the role of film in the influence of the criminal justice system.

5 APRIL

JUST-ICE causing a justice crisis
Camila Batmanghelidjh

Psychotherapist, founder of The Place to Be and Kids Company

Camila Batmanghelidjh will explore the impact of emotional and institutional coldness on psychological life of young people in urban inner city environments.

26 APRIL

What price imprisonment?
Lord Ramsbotham, GCB, OBE

*Lord Ramsbotham was Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Prisons between 1995 and 2001
and is currently Chairman of the Koestler
Awards scheme, Vice-Chair of the All Party
Penal Affairs Group Vice-Chair of the All Party Parliamentary Group for Learning and Skills in the Criminal Justice System, President of UNLOCK, the National Association of Ex-
Offenders and cross-bencher of the House of Lords*

Lord Ramsbotham will talk on the price of imprisonment, exploring both the financial and social cost of imprisonment and encouraging debate on how the system could be better managed.
